CASES GO OFF DOCKET

REPORT FROM BRAZIL THAT THE MANY SUITS AGAINST VANDALIA COAL CO. ARE COMPROMISED.

TWO CASES TRIED HERE

The long line of litigation growing out of the explosion of gas in the Rosebud mine of the Vandalia Coal Company, at Seelyville, a few years ago, in which many were killed and injured, is practically at an end. It will be recalled that the explosion brought about a world of controversy over whether or not the explosion was of gas or of coal dust, and it largely determined the responsibility of the company or the men. It will also be recalled that experts from the state fought over the matter, and no very satisfactory conclusion was reached. The result was that nineteen men injured in the explosion brought damage suits for various amounts against the coal company. All of these men were represented by A. W. Knight, of this city, the cases taken to Putnam County on a change of venue. At the last term of court there two cases were tried—the first being that of Yemm vs. the company, and the jury surprised everybody in giving a verdict for $10,000, the full amount asked, which is very unusual in damage suits. The next case tried was that of William Haverkamp vs. the company, and the jury gave him damages in the sum of $3,200. By this time the company evidently saw the drift of the thing, and the movement toward an out of court settlement was started. Saturday four of the remaining eight cases were satisfactorily settled. These were the cases of Carl Haverkamp, Elza Dan-hour, Alex Lawson and Mrs. Lewis Smith, whose husband died since the explosion, but not from the direct effects of his injuries. The remaining cases are those of Lewis James, Samuel Darby, LeMay and Glezek, the latter being killed outright in the explosion and who is being represented by Father Bauer as administrator. Settlements have been agreed in these latter cases, hence the long litigation growing out of this explosion may be said to have reached an end.—Brazil Daily Times.

Dr. Hawkins went to Louisville, Ky., this morning to bring home Chas. T. Moore, who is seriously ill in a hospital at that place.

GOVERNOR SAYS FINISH

GRAVEL ROAD CONTRACT LET WHEN LAW WAS PASSED ON TO BE COMPLETED.

CONTRACTORS REJOICING

If Governor Marshall is right many gravel roads now partially finished may be completed. He is quoted as saying: "In all cases involved in the supreme court decision, as I understand it," said the governor, "where a gravel road contract has been let under the law, the work begun, tax levied, and the bonds sold, the transaction will not in any particular be affected by the decision, on the principle that no man knowing his right to prevent any piece of work, can stand by and see it done, or even begun, knowing that he is liable for payment for the work, can receive the fruits of the work done and consent and then dispute his liability to pay. I make this statement in view of former decisions of the supreme court on similar questions. I own a farm and, driving past it, observe you working in one of the fields, and ask you what you are doing, you replying that you are cleaning the field. I would be compelled to pay you for your work when it was completed."

SPECIAL REPORT BY PUPILS

Superintendent Woody in order to make a report to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction complete asked Miss Truebloods Botany class to report the trees in the high school yard. A committee from the class reported as follows:

Sugar Maple, 13; Red Maple, 1; Silver Maple, 2; Mulberry, 1; White Ash, 1; White Elm, 4. Total 22.

On the size of the school grounds, a committee from Miss Daggy's classes in Mathematics, reported the dimensions as 173 feetx258 feet; or 1.0246 acres.

The Botany Committee, were Harry Mason, James Savage and Gilbert Knetzer. The Mathematics Committee, Dorsey Meade Anderson, Gordon Thomas and Wallace Welsh.

The Harvey Stock Company which played here at the Opera House last week stayed here over Sunday leaving for Crawfordsville, where it plays this week, this morning. The company had a very successful week here.

MAKES PLEA FOR CHILDREN

DR. DOWNEY OF THE METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD SPEAKS TWICE.

MANY HEAR ADDRESSES

Dr. David Downey, Secretary of the Sunday School Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church spoke twice in Greencastle Sunday and held a conference with Sunday School workers in the afternoon besides. In the morning Dr. Downey spoke at College Avenue Church and in the evening in Meharry Hall, both Locust Street and College Avenue churches joining in the service.

His addresses were both pleas for greater consideration of the child in the church. He declared that the churches had the power to mold the child and that as a result there would be a long life of work for the church and the kingdom. He was of the impression that the taking of a child into the church was a much more important thing than the taking in of an adult whose life was largely behind and not before. With the child in his teens all life was yet to be and was ready to be

F. M. LYON TELLS OF THE WRECK

BOTH HE AND J. E. CARNAHAN WERE INJURED, THE LATTER PROBABLY SERIOUSLY.

DAY COACH DEMOLISHED

Many of Those Riding With Local Man Had Arms and Legs Broken. Mr. Lyon Has Strained Knee and Bruised Hip—Train Hit Cars Standing on Siding.

F. M. Lyons, who returned this morning from Canton, Ohio, tells of the wreck at Lewisville, Ind., on Friday night, in which many were badly injured and both he and his companion, J. E. Carnahan were injured, the latter probably seriously.

Mr. Carnahan and Mr. Lyon, who were on their way to Canton, were riding in the day coach when the train, which was running about sixty miles an hour ran onto a switch and struck some freight cars which were standing on the switch.

Two mail cars which were just ahead of the day coach were wrecked and six mail clerks were badly put into use for the church and the kingdom.

Dr. Downey is an enthusiast for children, and spoke of the work that is being done by the Sunday School Board. Nearly ten thousand dollars has been distributed this year to needy Sunday Schools. Also nearly three hundred schools have been established in communities where the children had before this time, no opportunity to attend any form of religious service.

The Secretary is an able though not eloquent speaker, and his intense interest and thorough earnestness carries conviction to all of his hearers.

CIRCUIT COURT NOTES

This morning twelve cases filed against the Vandalia Coal Company and brought here on change of venue were stricken from the docket on compromise, the defendants paying the costs.

In the case of Charles W. Ward against Clarence A. Tuttle motion and reasons for a new trial was filed.

In the case of Benjamin Hanlon against Lucinda Hanlon, in which the plaintiff was ruled to file answer to the defendant answer by the 18th day and failed to do so, the plaintiff was called and defaulted and trial had and judgment given to the defendant for costs.

Change of venue was granted in the case of Henry Myres against the Vandalia Railroad Company.

Albert Burnside is home from Jennings and Ohio Counties, where he last week, lectured at the Farmer's Institutes held in those counties. He reports very successful institutes.

injured. The day coach was turned sideways on the track, both ends mashed in and one end of the car raised eight or ten feet high.

The crash was so great when the train hit the freight car that everyone in the day coach was thrown from his seat and most of them were injured more or less. Many had arms broken and several legs were broken.

Mr. Lyon and Mr. Carnahan were thrown to the floor of the car. Mr. Lyon is suffering a sprained knee and a bruised hip and Mr. Carnahan was badly bruised on the side and back.

Wreckage was piled high around the car and the doors had to be pried open before the occupants of the day coach could be gotten out. After waiting at the scene of the wreck for eight hours the passengers were taken on another train and taken on.

Mr. Carnahan, it is feared is more seriously injured than it was at first believed. He managed to get to his home in Canton, all right, but Sunday afternoon he was forced to go to bed with his injuries. It is feared that his liver and kidneys were injured in the wreck.

Mr. Lyons injuries were slight and he returned home this morning and was at his office. However, he does not want to be in any more wrecks, as he says that the escape of those in the day coach from death or serious injuries, was a miracle.

SCARLET FEVER AFFECTS SCHOOLS

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES HAVE CAUSED ATTENDANCE RECORD FOR PAST MONTH TO FALL.

SCHOOL YEAR 1-3 OVER

The third month of the public schools was rounded out on Friday evening. One-third of the school year has passed. There is now no way to make it better or worse. It has been pleasant and successful. There are no failing teachers in the corps, and but a very small minority of failing pupils, and insubordination in a pupil is very rare.

Barring the invasion made by scarlet fever in District No. 1; there has been little of much moment to regret. The indications now are that this infection is under control. Every care known to hygiene has been taken to stamp it out. No new case among the public school children has developed within the past two weeks.

As might be expected, the presence of a contagious disease has affected the attendance adversely. Still the schools go to record with nearly ninety-six per cent. in average daily attendance and more than half of all the pupils neither tardy nor absent; and, where good health prevailed there are some record breaking figures.

The following schedules are the figures from the superintendent's monthly report for "average daily attendance," and "neither tardy nor absent," expressed in per cent; and the tardy record:

School	Att.	punct.	Tdy
Schools as whole	95.9	54.0	30-32
High School	96.4	56.0	10-10
4th year class	96.6	56.6	5-5
3rd year class	95.4	53.0	2-2
2nd year class	96.7	54.0	2-2
1st year class	96.7	59.0	1-1
District No. 1	94.8	44.0	9-10
8 & 7 grades	97.4	58.0	1-1
6 & 5 grades	94.9	38.0	2-2
4 & 3 grades	93.0	38.0	1-1
2 & 1 grades	94.7	45.0	5-6
District No. 2	96.1	60.0	2-3
8 & 7 grades	100.0	97.6	1-1
6 & 5 grades	97.3	65.0	0-0
4 & 3 grades	93.3	49.0	0-0
2 & 1 grades	94.7	43.0	1-2
District No. 3	95.0	55.6	9-9
8 & 7 grades	98.2	79.0	1-1

4 & 3 grades	99.0	79.5	0-0
2 & 1 grades	93.0	22.2	6-6

But for one failure to be on time by a seventh grade pupil, Miss Miller's room would have a clear record. And were it not for a half day's absence, Miss Watkins' fourth grade would rank so, too. The pictures hang where they are.

SELECT NEW JANITOR

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MEET AND LEAVE ROAD BUSINESS TILL TUESDAY.

FRED REISING IS RETAINED

The County Commissioners met this morning for the first time since the supreme court declared the gravel road unconstitutional. The matter of roads did not come up today, however, as the commissioners will hold a second session tomorrow to consider that among other matters. The principal business before the commissioners was claims and the election of a janitor for the court house for the coming year.

The selection of a janitor proved a difficult business. Three unusually good men were applicants for the place. They were Fred Reising, the present janitor, John Cherry, who last year assisted Fred Reising, the assistant janitor, and Jake Klefer. Reising has been an excellent janitor as all who have to do with the court house will testify. John Cherry while assistant janitor was highly spoken of by every one, and his

AKERS REFUSED CHANGE OF VENUE

JUDGE RAWLEY HOLDS THE FACT OF NEWSPAPER PUBLICATIONS OF ARREST IS NOT IMPORTANCE.

TRIAL COMES THIS WEEK

On opening court on Monday morning Judge Rawley ruled on the petition asking for change of venue in the case of the State of Indiana against John Akers for burglary. A petition had been filed Saturday asking a change of jurisdiction on the ground that the newspapers had published the incidents relative to the arrest and preliminary trial of Akers. It was alleged that this publication had prejudicated the public mind against Akers.

The judge declared that he did not believe the average jurymen would be biased in his opinion by newspaper reports of the case. He therefore refused to grant the change prayed for and held Akers to the Putnam Circuit Court. The trial will occur this week, probably as soon as the Runyan case is finished.

PLAYING THE GAME.

The layman, who in this day sits in the court room and watches the progress of a case, can but come to the conclusion that law is a game and that more skill is necessary to play the game according to the rules than to arrive at the equity and justice in the case. Each attorney is so bound about by rules that he can not ask a witness what he wishes, or introduce the evidence he desires if it be contrary to the rules of the game. And the rules are evidently not for the protection of the witness, solely as such rules are needed, for the witness in the case is shouted at, insulted with questions as to his or her private life, often ruled out after being asked, and is in general at the mercy of the character of the attorney. The jury is instructed that certain answers made by the witness are to be considered and certain other answers are to be thrown out though seemingly of equal importance. The whole end of the game is to secure equity and justice, but the method is so much befogged with rule, with technicality, with seeming cross purposes, that layman and the juror is lost till the whole skein is unwound for him by the attorneys in the final argument. Surely the time will come when the license of the present cross questioning will be abridged, and equity will be reached as an end in itself without so much regard for the rules of the game called law.

The End of the Ride.

Coming out of one of the large department stores two well dressed women saw a group of street urchins gazing at their automobile, and one little girl was heard to say, "Wish I could have a ride in it." The women smiled, and then the child was asked if she would really like a ride and was helped into the machine after assuring the women that she would not be missed at home. Her companions set up a cheer as the machine started, and some of them were still on the spot when it returned half an hour later, bringing back the little girl. The women congratulated themselves on having given the little one an extraordinary treat, but were disenchanted when she told them that her father was a chauffeur and that she liked his machine "a great deal better."—New York Tribune.

A Compliment to the Minister.

In Albert Dawson's work, "Joseph Parker—His Life and Ministry," there are some anecdotes of the famous minister of the City temple. We are told that what Dr. Parker regarded as, in its own peculiar way, the best compliment he ever received came from an omnibus conductor. The vehicle was crossing Holborn viaduct, and when it came to the City temple a passenger alighted.

"That's the man, and that's the place," said the conductor, indicating Dr. Parker's church. "I went there once, and I enjoyed myself so much that I'm going again the first night of I have. We laughed, and we cried, and we had a rare time. You see," the conductor continued, "he doesn't make religion so serious."

Seeds Planted in Eggshells.

Fill half an eggshell with good rich earth, stick in a seed or two, stand the shell up in a box of earth, keep it warm and moist, and then, when you think you can trust the weather out of doors and the seeds have sprouted, you knock the shell off and put the little ball of earth into Mother Earth, and there you are. Not a root has been disturbed, and if you choose a favorable time for transplanting there will not be a wilted leaf to retard the growing of the plant.

Painted Lips.

The "Personal Recollections of Sutherland Edwards," English music critic, records that after the peace of 1815 it used to be the rule for every hussar to wear a black mustache, and those who had neither a black mustache nor a fair one which they could dye were required to paint the semblance of a black mustache on their upper lip.

IT FLASHED FOR THROCMORTON.

And Revealed the Secret of His Sweetheart's Murder.

By BUSHROD C. WASHINGTON.

"Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked the clerk of twelve solemn faced men in the jury box. "We have," responded the foreman, handing a folded paper to the clerk, who read aloud the indictment on the back. "We, the jury, find the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, as charged in the indictment."

"William Throcmorton," said Judge Smithson, with judicial sternness, "after a fair trial, defended by able counsel, you stand convicted of the cruel and deliberate murder of Olive Graham."

"It has been shown that the young woman had promised to become your wife. Her parents, confiding in your honorable intentions, had recognized you as her accepted lover, and the door of their home was open to you."

"While the motive in your crime is not apparent, the facts which fasten it upon you are linked into a chain of circumstances strong and incontrovertible."

"You stood with Olive Graham on the porch of her home; an instant later her cry for mercy was heard by her parents above the storm then raging. Haste to her assistance, they found her murdered body on the slope of the hill a rod from the door."

"You were taken soon after, as it were, red handed, the bloody knife with which the deed was done having been found upon your person."

"You have pleaded 'not guilty,' but have not disproved a single fact the state alleged against you."

"The penalty of your crime as by statute fixed is death. Have you anything to say why the sentence should not be pronounced?"

Throcmorton was a plump of physical manhood, well built, erect, with a character as straight as his form. He held a medal from "the management" and was the wearer of a watch, the gift of grateful passengers when he was taken from the wreck of his engine. "Three," as they called him, was more than liked. He was loved by the grimy roadmen.

When the last word fell from Judge Smithson the character of the man and the stubborn facts of the case stood in solemn contrast. In such a contest character must lose.

The eyes of Throcmorton shone straight into the eyes of the judge. There was nothing of the bravado in his manner, neither tremor nor sign of weakening.

"If I please your honor," responded the prisoner, rising as he spoke, "it will shock you and all present when I say I mourn for Olive Graham and am innocent. But what is it worth to say it in the face of the evidence? Had I sat with the jury I must have come to their verdict. I am ready, your honor, for the sentence."

Moved by some sudden impulse, the judge turned to the sheriff and said in a faltering voice: "Remove the prisoner and return him for sentence to the bar of this court. The day and hour the court will later indicate."

Old Graham was a pensioned track inspector, who loved the thunder of trains and scream of whistles.

He had built his house thirty feet from the roadbed. Just back of it and extending down to the track was an abrupt twenty foot cliff of shale, the perpendicular face of which was smooth. It was in front of it that they found the body of Olive.

No. 49, just run out of the roundhouse, had backed up and coupled to the St. Louis express. It was Tom Doyle's pet engine.

Doyle was looking from the cab window for the signal to start. As an engineer he was a good second to Throcmorton. He was Throcmorton's next friend and was to have been best man at his wedding.

He believed Throcmorton was innocent because he couldn't believe otherwise. But there were the facts, and when he thought of them there was a lump in his throat.

Ted Elzie, Doyle's fireman, had just raked the grate when a squad of the boys came by.

"What's the news?" asked Ted.

"Throcmorton's got to make me believe Throcmorton killed Olive Graham," said Doyle, emphasizing with his fist on the window sill.

The day had been sweltering, clouds had gathered, and the night was black. It was down grade, and Tom Doyle, with hand on throttle valve and eye on the rails, was ready to slack at the curve.

The storm had burst, and just as the engine struck the curve a flash of lightning and the focus of the headlight met full on the face of the cliff. The sight Tom Doyle saw made him reel and grip the lever.

"A letter for Mr. Absalom Conway?" called out Goggin, the worthy proprietor of a gambling den in one of the big cities, putting emphasis on "Mr. Absalom." "That's you, Ab, I reckon," he added, tossing him the letter.

Mr. Conway eyed the letter full a minute and, looking nervously over his shoulder, tore the envelope.

Friend Ab—They say my nerves is broke an' I mus' run half time or throw up. I'll divvy my runs with you, an' if my nerves don't mend yours is the job for good. Right away you must come. An' it's yours I am. TOM DOYLE.

In the cab of No. 49 sat Absalom Conway to divide the run with Doyle. Ted Elzie was fireman. There was distant thunder; big drops began to patter and the wind raised. A storm was on.

"Jump into the cab, Ted, just 'fore we strike the curve," said Doyle below his breath as he put foot on the engine step.

Forced fire tore the sky, shattered telegraph poles and played in blue flames around the engine wheels as they sped onward.

A flash of tremendous voltage, and the cliff glowed white within the headlight's circle.

Conway's hand dropped from the lever, and he stood dazed and trembling.

"Me and Ted saw it, Ab," said Doyle. "In mercy's name, what made you do it?"

Before he could catch himself Conway exclaimed, "She jilted me, an' I swore she'd never marry Throcmorton."

"And how did Throcmorton come by the bloody knife?" asked Doyle.

"I dropped it into his coat pocket as I dashed by him halfway back to town," replied Conway, who, becoming dogged, quit answering.

The radius of a circle drawn in chalk on the smooth face of the rock marked the place where the headlight focused as the engine struck the curve.

A frame supporting apparatus had been set opposite by Professor White of the state university. It was connected by wires with the town power house.

Judge Smithson, members of the bar and representatives of the press were present. Old Graham and his wife stood by, Throcmorton supporting them, and Tom Doyle, with Ted, was much in evidence.

At a signal from Professor White an intense light from the apparatus was thrown upon the spot.

There was a suppressed exclamation as a picture appeared within the circle.

It was more than life size and became plainer as the light intensified.

There upon the face of the rock stood the grim counterpart of Absalom Conway. His right arm encircled Olive Graham's wrist, his left hand clutching the identical knife in half descended stroke.

"Lightning photography," said the professor, "is classed as a freak among natural phenomena. The picture can only be seen under light approaching in brightness the flash that fixed it."

Queer Hotel Employees.

In the lobby of the Shirley several men were talking about queer people seen around hotels.

"Down in Kentucky," said a traveling man, "there was a negro hotel porter with only one arm, but he could carry the heaviest trunks just the same. He'd use his one hand and his teeth in lifting the trunks."

"I once stopped at a hotel in Texas," said a doctor who lives at the Shirley, "where they had a deaf and dumb man who was employed as an entertainer. Each night he'd play the piano and sing while the guests ate supper. The funny part of it was he'd always be on the key, although he couldn't hear a note."

The manager of the Shirley spoke up at this point. "Speaking of queer hotel employees," he said, "I guess I once knew the queerest on earth. He was employed at a hotel in a small Michigan town. The man had lost a leg in the war and had a wooden stump. It was on account of this wooden leg that he was employed at the hotel."

"What had the wooden leg to do with his working at the hotel?" somebody asked.

The manager cleared his throat and replied, "Why, you see, they used him to mash the potatoes and—"

They stopped him right there.—Denver Post.

Who Writes References?

"How in the world do other folk live?" "What other folk?" asked her friend.

"Why, the other folk who write the references. Take that last cook I had. She gave me the best written reference I ever saw and also the telephone number of the woman who gave it to her and for whom she had worked for more than a year. I called up the woman, and she was enthusiastic."

"Why, I'd take her back again in a minute if she'd come," was her ultimatum, and before she reached that she praised the cook up to the skies. She said she was a splendid pastry maker, soups were her specialty, her desserts were always delicious. The best dessert I ever got out of that girl was a plain cornstarch. Her soups were like dishwater, and everything between was equally bad. And now look at the waitress I have! Her reference was a marvel. She was refined, the writer stated, and quiet and neat. She knew just what to do without being told. I never saw anybody so careless and indifferent as that girl. She never knows a thing that I haven't told her at least a dozen times. I have to keep my eye on what she does all the time. Am I such a frightful crank, or what is it? How in the world do other folk live?—New York Press.

By THOMAS BARBER JUDSON.
(Copyright, 1903, by American Press Association.)

It was visitors' day at Ludlow street jail, New York. Ludlow street jail is a very gentle counterpart of the debtors' prison of the olden time. Its inmates are those in contempt of the inheritance and certain other courts, federal bankrupts, execution and judgment debtors and breach of promise and alimony men.

John Decker had finished his breakfast of rolls, coffee and an egg—he could have breakfasted more heartily had he been able to order from a neighboring restaurant—and was sitting in the lounging room, reading a morning paper when a card was handed him. He looked at it, frowned and said:

"I understood when I was put in here that no prisoner was obliged to see his wife. Tell the sheriff that I claim the immunity promised."

The message was delivered, and presently the sheriff himself appeared.

"Your wife says, Mr. Decker, that she has come with the olive branch, and she told me to say in case you declined to receive her that she has your son Johnny with her and wishes to know if you will see him."

The hard lines on Decker's face relaxed.

"Yes, if you will bring him in here." The sheriff retired, and in a few minutes a boy of six came bounding into the room and, springing into his father's arms, covered his face with kisses. They were returned in kind, while a tear stood in the man's eye.

"Mamma gave me a message for you, papa. She says she was told that you were hiding money."

"Who told her that?" "Mrs. Spiffire."

"That Jezebel! She made all the trouble."

"And mamma says I was sick and baby was sick, and she was turned out of the rooms, and nothing to buy meat or medicines, and—"

The man put his hand on the boy's mouth.

"Never mind all that, Johnny. I can't bear it."

"And mamma says she's been studying stenography and has got a place. She doesn't wish you to stay here any longer."

"What does she wish me to do?" "First to forgive her for putting you in here."

"What next?" "I wish you to come home."

"Johnny, dear, I wish I could do both, but I can do neither."

"Not for me, poppy? Please do—just for me, you know."

"Very well; I'll do the first for you."

"And you'll come home?" "No; I can't do that."

"Oh, pop, please do!" "There will be time enough to consider that in the future."

"No, there won't. Mamma says—But I wasn't to tell you."

"Tell me what?" "That it'll be too late then."

"Oh, it will be too late! In other words, she must dictate just when a reconciliation may take place."

"What's that?" "Make it up."

"No, that isn't it. I know why, but I won't tell. Mamma says you're so proud. That's one reason."

"I don't understand, Johnny."

"Mamma says if I tell you you'll never come home. You must come home without knowing."

The father studied the boy's face musingly for a time and at last said: "Well, Johnny, I could never refuse you anything. I'll forgive your mother for putting me in here, and I'll come home, wherever that may be. I suppose it's in a dirty garret. But tell your mother that I won't permit her to do the work for the family. I know where I can get $10 a week as porter. It's pretty hard to take such a place after having employed a hundred men myself, but I've learned that what can't be cured must be endured."

"Oh, poppy!" The boy threw his arms spasmodically around his father's neck, gave him a quick hug and kiss, jumped down and ran away to announce the success of his mission.

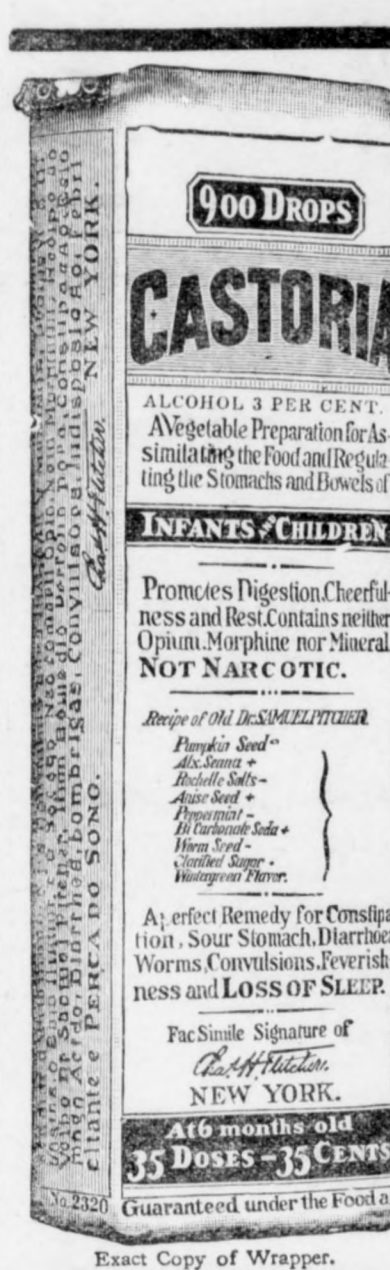

It was several days after this before the red tape that held John Decker in prison for not paying his wife her alimony was cut and he walked out a free man. The hour was 5 in the afternoon. Boarding an elevated train, he started for an address uptown that had been given him as the abode of his wife and children. Leaving the train, he passed down a cross street. Coming to the number that had been given him as his family abode, he concluded there had been a mistake. The place was a handsome apartment house. At the elevator he asked the uniformed boy if he knew where Mrs. Decker lived.

"Fifth floor," replied the boy.

Wonderingly the ex-prisoner entered the elevator, and when it stopped Johnny's eyes were glistening through the grating. In another moment a reunited family were clinging in one embrace.

Mrs. Decker's money had been invested in her husband's business. One of the largest debtors to the firm who had contributed principally to the failure had astonished Mrs. Decker by paying her his debt, a fortune in itself. She wisely brought about a reconciliation with her husband before he knew that she was independent, knowing that after he was aware of it his position would be very different.

There followed a happy reunion dinner.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Prompt Payments

It takes more than a year to settle up the average estate—even a small one. An estate that consists of a policy in the Equitable Life of New York is settled and money paid within 24 hours after proofs of death are received. The Equitable Life has a reputation for the prompt payment of death claims and the prompt settlement of maturing policies unequalled by any other insurance organization in the world.

Easy to Gauge a Family's Social Ambitions When You Know How.

"Ah, Mrs. Brown," said Mrs. Sherlock Holmes, "I observe that you love formality; that you own this house, although I am not certain about the mortgage; that you are not very well connected; that you do not care for books; that you are trying to make a grand stab at being recherche, while only succeeding in a poor four flush."

"Perfectly wonderful, Mrs. Holmes; quite as good as your husband. How in the world do you do it?"

"It is very easy," replied Mrs. Holmes as she deftly unshined her nose with a pocket powder bag. "When I came in you took special pains to ask me to remove my gloves and be informal, which showed that you have formality on the brain and that your remark was intended as an apology for anything which was not just so. If you were really informal you would have said nothing about it."

"You are not accustomed to good things or you would not have served that horrible cake with the tea. Then when you called the maid to replenish the cake, most of which you ate yourself, you said apologetically, 'We bought this house without a bell in the library,' a remark which, though awkward, proved conclusively that you owned your home, but proved nothing as to the size of the mortgage."

"Then you will recall your account of how your husband complained of having nothing to read and how you chided him by the reply that there were three large bookcases downstairs and two upstairs, all well filled. This proves that you look on books as household furniture of the junk type. Your whole demeanor proves that you are a very poor climber."

"Perfectly marvelous, Mrs. Holmes."

"It might seem so," replied the detective's wife, "but the real secret, after all, is that I have met so many like you before."—Ellis O. Jones in Life.

The Swiftest Yet.

William B. Hibbs, a Washington broker, has a big country place just outside of Leesburg, Va. He put a large searchlight on top of his stone water tower and from time to time at night amuses himself by throwing the light around the country.

One night last summer Hibbs was on the tower playing with the searchlight. A Virginian driving a skittish team hitched to a surrey, in which there were two ladies, was coming along a road leading to Leesburg and was about four miles from the village.

Hibbs threw the searchlight down the road. "Gosh darn it," exclaimed the Virginian, "here comes one of those pesky automobiles!" He jumped out and took the horses by their heads. The light continued on the road for half a minute and then was switched away. The Virginian stood stupefied. Then he turned to the ladies and said in an awed voice: "Jeerusalem! That automobile must be going fast. It's gone by, and I didn't even see it!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Too Uneven.

A Cleveland mother sent this somewhat satirical note to the teacher of her small son:

"Pardon me for calling your attention to the fact that you have pulled Johnnie's right ear until it is getting longer than the other. Please pull his left ear for awhile and oblige his mother."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Responsibilities Ignored.

"Why," asked the conservative citizen, "are modern children so slung and inconsiderate?"

"In some families," replied Miss Cayenne, "I should say it is because they fail to realize that they ought to set a good example to their parents."—Washington Star.

The Scrap Book

His Wife Gave Him What?

Not long ago Satan was hurrying over his rounds in the regions below, and his eye caught a new arrival. It was a man with a proud and haughty air that would have put to shame any king on earth. He strode about, with his nose high and his chin out and a sort of supercilious style. Satan stopped and watched him, and finally curiosity won, and he tapped the fellow on the shoulder.

"See here, who are you, anyway? Any one would think from your style you owned the place."

"I do," said the shade. "My wife gave it to me just before I left home."

At Sat of Sun.

If we sit down at set of sun And count the things that we have done And, counting, find One self denying act, one word That eased the heart of one who heard That felt like sunshine where it went, Then we may count the day well spent.

Knew the Beds.

In the gray light of early morning a traveler in Scotland faced the night clerk resolutely. "You gave me the worst bed in the inn!" he began, indignation in his voice and eyes. "If you don't change me before tonight I shall look up other lodgings."

"There is no difference in the beds, sir," the clerk replied respectfully.

The traveler smiled ironically. "If that is so," he said, "perhaps you wouldn't mind giving me the room on the left of mine."

"It is occupied, sir."

"I know it is—by a man who snored all night and was still at it ten minutes ago. His bed must be better than mine or he couldn't sleep at a maximum capacity of sound eight hours on a stretch."

"The beds are all alike, sir. That man has been here before, and he always sleeps on the floor, sir."

Abbreviating a Name.

One member of congress employs in writing a perplexing system of abbreviation, which might be termed a combination of short and long hand.

Some of his colleagues were one day speaking of his craze for brevity, when one said: "Blank has certainly brought his system to a fine point, but there was a chap in my state, Kentucky, who distanced all competitors in this respect. His name was Will Knott, and so keen was his mania for abbreviation that in writing to friends he invariably subscribed himself 'Won't.'"

Waked Him Up.

John Kendrick Bangs, the author, once attended a political meeting at which he was the third speaker, following two local spellbinders to whom the crowd listened patiently in anticipation of the "big gun" of the occasion.

The evening was warm, and while the second speaker was holding forth a fat man, occupying a seat directly in front of the stage, yielded to the soporific influences and snored loudly.

"That's one on you," chuckled Mr. Bangs to his fellow orator as the latter closed his peroration and retired to his seat at the rear of the stage. "Now watch me wake him up!"

Sure enough, scarcely was Mr. Bangs well under way before the fat man opened his eyes, stared wildly for an instant and bolted for the door!—Lippincott's.

Still in Love.

A happily married woman who had enjoyed thirty-three years of wedlock and who was the grandmother of four beautiful little children had an amusing old colored woman for a cook.

One day when a box of especially beautiful flowers was left for the mistress the cook happened to be present, and she said, "Yo' husband send you all the pretty flowers you gits, missy?" "Certainly my husband, mammy," promptly answered the lady.

"Glory!" exclaimed the cook. "He suttinly am holdin' out well."

Embarrassing.

When the new minister, a handsome and unmarried man, made his first pastoral call on the Foxdicks he took little Anna up in his arms and tried to kiss her, but the child refused to be kissed. She struggled loose and ran off into the next room, where her mother was putting a few finishing touches to her adornment before going into the parlor to greet the clergyman.

"Mamma," the little girl whispered, "the man in the parlor wanted me to kiss him."

"Well," replied mamma, "why didn't you let him? I would if I were you." Thereupon Anna ran back into the parlor, and the minister asked:

"Well, little lady, won't you kiss me now?"

"No; I won't," replied Anna promptly, "but mamma says she will."

Evolution.

Observe constantly that all things take place by change and accustom thyself to consider that the nature of the universe loves nothing so much as to change the things which are and to make new things like them.—Marcus Aurelius.

A Queer Salute.

A French soldier on active service was informed by the mayor of his village that his father had recently died. In acknowledgment he wrote as follows: "Monsieur le maire, I heartily thank you for my father's death. It is a little accident that often happens in families. As for myself, I am in the hospital minus one leg, with which I have the honor to salute you."

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence in the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman—that happy, victorious heroine of modern feminism who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences; that being who has known how to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action and remain feminine in grace, charm and altruism; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be engaged almost entirely in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, moreover, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but is also the phenomenon of the new world that might have the greatest and gravest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training, overthrowing the society of the old continent or continents, which rest to a greater extent than is realized on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Putnam's Magazine.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed Worth the Price?

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's time for your own self—to be yourself and to think your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price when it must be paid for at such a rate? Of what use are mansions and country houses and great estates if one has no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one collect through agents the most exquisite works of art if he cannot find more than a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always hastening about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to receive the pleasure which their company could afford you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it is a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymen and countrywomen will believe beyond all doubt that you are really happy and will envy you.—Munsey's Magazine.

Icebergs.

Apparently ice is ice, of course; but, strangely enough, there is a marked difference in it. Sea water and salt water in general freezes at a lower temperature than pure water, in doing which a part of the salt separates and the ice when melted gives water that is fresher than the original, and along this same line there exists a marked difference in form between the icebergs of the two hemispheres. Arctic bergs are of irregular shape, with lofty pinnacles, cloud capped towers and glittering domes, whereas those of the southern waters are flat topped and solid looking. The former reach the sea by narrow floods, while the latter are more regular in formation, reaching the open sea by the way of wide passageways and not subject to the grinding and breaking efforts of their northern relatives.—Pittsburgh Press.

Rich Men's Gifts Are Poor.

beside this: "I want to go on record as saying that I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest gifts that God has made to mankind, writes Mrs. O. Rhinevault of Vestal Center, N. Y. "I can never forget what it has done for me." This glorious medicine gives a woman buoyant spirits, vigor of body and jubilant health. It quickly cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Fainting, Dizzy ache, Backache, Fainting and Dizzy spells, soon builds up the weak, alling and sleeky. A Real Cute Dog.

A good dog story is attributed to a visitor to an English country inn on market day. "Now," he said, "I've got a dog here I wouldn't take $20 for. You can believe me or not, but what I am going to tell you is perfectly true. In the early part of last spring I lost six ewes and could find them nowhere. One day about three weeks later as I was looking across from my house to the edge of the moor about two miles away I noticed some sheep. I got my telescope and assured myself that they were mine. I placed the telescope in a suitable position and made Bob look through it. After about a minute the dog wagged his tail and looked at me as if he understood what I wanted and was off like a shot. In less than two hours he brought the sheep home safe and sound."

"Ours! Oh, George!" she cried and laid her blushing cheek upon his shirt front. — Catholic Standard and Times.

Girl Wanted. — I want a wife—a first rate wife—A girl that's all my own.

To cook my meals and cheer my life With smiling word and tone,

A girl that ne'er will pledge a vow To any one but me.

That's been brought up to milk a cow And have warm cakes for tea.

She must be graceful as the bell Upon the ivy found.

And make such butter as will sell For forty cents a pound.

—Hamilton (Ont.) Banner.

Pinches All Round. — She—My new gown is just lovely.

It's a perfect fit.

He—Satisfied on that point, eh?

She—Yes; I know it's a good fit because it pinches me so.

He—Well, it doesn't pinch you half as much as it does my pocketbook. — Catholic Standard and Times.

Hard on the Mice. — A woman was ordered by the doctor to put some ice in a bag and bind it on the temples of her sick boy.

On inquiring after his patient the next day he was informed, "Oh, Tommy's better, but the mice are dead!" — Philadelphia Inquirer.

Why They Fell. — "The shades of night were falling fast," But not with Paul Revere.

This happened night before the last, And all of you should hear.

A stranger came through Spooky Town And ere that he got past

The spooners pulled the curtains down— "The shades were falling fast."

BECOMES BRIDE OF AN OREGON MAN

Marriage of Miss Hallie Hamrick and Fred M. Thompson of Klamath Falls, Oregon, solemnized at Home of Bride's Parents This Morning at 11 O'clock.

BRIDAL TRIP THROUGH WEST

The marriage of Miss Hallie Hamrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hamrick and Fred M. Thompson of Klamath Falls, Oregon, was solemnized at 11 o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's parents, just south of town. Dr. Salem B. Town officiated.

Only the immediate members of the family attended the wedding. The bride and groom left this afternoon for Tarkio, Mo., where they will visit the parents of the groom for several days, after which they will go to Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland. They expect to be at home at Klamath Falls, Oregon, about January 1.

Mr. Thompson is Assistant General Passenger Agent for the Southern Pacific Railway with headquarters at Klamath Falls.

BETTER LIFE MEETINGS AT LOCUST ST. CHURCH.

Meetings to lead to better living will be held at Locust Street Church this week on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30. The pastor will speak briefly each evening. The subjects will be as follows.

Monday evening, "The Temptations of Jesus."

Tuesday, "Union With Christ."

Wednesday, "The Physical and Social Habits of Jesus."

Thursday, "The Religious Habits of Jesus."

Blind Justice. — We meet our philosophical friend and observe that he is smiling contentedly.

"What has gone wrong now?" we ask.

"Nothing has gone wrong," he explains. "Something went right. Spriggins owed Bennett $10,000 and put his property in his wife's name so that Bennett couldn't collect."

"But that isn't anything unusual."

"And last night Mrs. Spriggins eloped with Bennett!" — Life.

Near the End. — "Hello, Thirty-nine," said the first messenger boy to the other, who was just starting out with a message.

"How far have you got to go?"

"Oh," replied Thirty-nine, pulling out his book, "only about six chapters. I'm just where Handsome Harry gets on the villain's trail." — Catholic Standard and Times.

A Hit. — I tacked a bullseye on my heart

And told the girls to shoot. They borrowed each a Cupid's dart

And Cupid's wiles to boot. May hit the widest circle fair;

Less struck outside the ring; Belle pulled the cord with eager care,

But did not hit a thing. When pretty Julia bent the bow—

"Is only truth to tell." She shot her eyes and let her go,

And—well, she rang the bell. — L. S. Waterhouse in Judge's Library.

First Lesson. — Father—Well, Carolyn, how do you like school?

Carolyn (aged six) — Oh, so much, papa!

Father—That's right, daughter. And now what have you learned today?

Carolyn—I've learned the names of all the little boys.—Harper's Bazar.

Different. — "Your daughter was to give me an answer to a very important question this evening."

"Be seated; she will be down in a half hour or so."

"Is she making up her mind?"

"No; that would not take long. It's her face." — Houston Post.

Geographical. — "Is proper to kiss 'neath the mistletoe,

As history shows. But where is the mistletoe? Who'd not rather be kissed Right under the nose?" — Judge's Library.

Worse Than the Bark. — "That dog next door should be killed."

"Why? Does it bark all night?"

"No; that's just the trouble. You wake up in the night and listen for the dog and can't hear a single sound."

—Buffalo Express.

Stang For 15 Years. — trying many doctors and $200.00 worth of medicine in vain. B. F. Ayscue of Ingleside, N. C., at last used Dr. King's New Life Pills and writes they wholly cured him. SELECT NEW JANITOR work received the highest praise. Jake Kiefer was known to be an excellent man, though he had never done work in the court house.

Reising proposed to do all the work of the court house, sweeping and cleaning not only the public part of the building as under the present contract, but also behind the counter, work now done by the officers in the various offices. In addition he agreed to do all the plumbing for the court house, the jail, the heating plant and the county farm. For this he was to receive a hundred per month. Mr. Kiefer made a like offer except as to the plumbing, which he was not to do. Cherry offered to do the work for $89 dollars per month and to hire the necessary plumbing, and to do the sweeping behind the counters in the various offices for an additional four dollars per month. The commissioners considered the matter from all sides and gave the contract to the present janitor because of the specifications as to plumbing in the jail, the heating plant and the county farm and his known ability as a mechanic. This conclusion was arrived at only after long deliberation, the merits of the contracts offered being no nearly equal.

A petition to add Frank Bettis, Wm. Rambo and Thomas Bell to the list of the Morton Detective Association was granted and notice ordered issued. The commissioners then went out to view a completed road and will meet again for further business in the morning.

HAS INSTALLED NEW PRESSER

Roy Jackson, who recently has opened a French Dry Cleaning and Pressing Establishment opposite the Fire Department in the Goodwine building has installed a pressing machine which is the most modern in pressing clothing.

The device is worked with a foot lever and great pressure is possible without injury to the clothes under it. At the same time it is the most sanitary presser on the market in that it is impossible for a disease to be transferred through the pressing cloth which is done away with. It is kept very hot by gas heat and when the pressure is put on the clothing, dry steam is forced into the garment which makes it impossible for any live germ to exist. With the machine it is possible to do twice as much work as by hand. At the same time it removes any odor, takes away the grimy appearance, raises the nap, revives the colors and imparts to the garment that freshness desired by all dressers.

Mr. Jackson is now conducting one of the modern establishments in the state. Mr. Jackson has had much experience in the cleaning and pressing work having been employed in some of the largest cleaning and drying establishments in the state.

He is a member of the State Association of cleaners and dyers. Heretofore Mr. Jackson has given most of his attention to his school work but now he intends taking only light work in the university and devoting most of his time to his cleaning and pressing work.

Spitting Nuisance

Hawking and Spitting is Caused by Catarrh Gernms.

If the local authorities want to stop the disgusting habit of spitting mucous on the sidewalks, they had better instruct the people as to the best method of killing catarrh germs and curing catarrh.

You can easily tell by reading the symptoms below whether you have catarrh or not:

Offensive breath, frequent sneezing, discharge from nose, stoppage of the nose, huskiness of the voice, tickling in throat, droppings in the throat, a cough, appetite, spasms of coughing, low spirited at times, raising on mucous, difficulty in breathing, loss of vital force.

The Owl Drug Store and the Red Cross Pharmacy have a sensible remedy, (money back if its fails) for catarrh, called Hyomel, which is a vaporized air so antiseptic that when it is breathed over the inflamed and germ-infested membrane, it kills all germ life and cures catarrh.

The price, including hard rubber inhaler, is only $1.00, and money back if it doesn't cure. Extra bottles, 50 cents.

"I have tried almost every catarrh cure on the market without benefit. Have been using Hyomel for one week and feel like a new man already." — Wm. V. Goode, Newark, Ohio, June 21, 1909.
